

Keep On Being You

Looks like the leaves are changing
The summer's come and gone

It's a metaphor, we are phasing
The way our colors change, we're feeling strange
Falling, falling one by one

But you just keep on moving
Don't give up on what you are

If you fall in the beginning
Go with what you know
And you'll see that you'll show
This world how much you shine and glow

Cause times keep on changing
By the day, by the night
And our love will keep on raging
In every way, in every stride

But no matter how much you feel this world is full of cruel
You're going through these phases, make ya feel like you are through
Keep on wishing on those stars and shooting for the moon
Though you're going through these stages, keep on being you

Now the frost is on the ground
The snow is falling silently

It chills you to the bone
To see that every tree is dead and bare, cold, shivering alone, like frozen stone

So take a look around you
Don't give up on what you have

Though the world has many horrors
Don't let them pull you down
Down, make you drown
Drown stand up tall and make some sound

Cause times keep on changing
By the day, by the night
And our love will liberate us
In every way, in every stride

But no matter how much you feel this world is full of cruel
Stand up for the innocent, pray and help the poor
Keep on wishing on those stars and shooting for the moon

Though you're going through these stages, keep on being you
